

One cleaned follow-up email

Input: one rough draft or a few bullets. Output: subject line and cleaner email ready to paste.

Rough draft received

maya, good talking today
sounds like implant consult leads are the issue front desk follows up late and missed calls are messy i can look at ads/calls/leads send me 60 days export?
then i'll say what to fix
also who owns same-day follow-up?

Clean follow-up email

Subject: next steps from today's call Maya, thanks again for talking today. The main issue sounds like lead quality plus same-day follow-up, not just ad spend. I can review the last 60 days of ads, calls, and lead outcomes, then send back a short cleanup plan for where implant consults are dropping.
If that works, please send the export by tomorrow at 2 PM and confirm who owns same-day follow-up internally.

Why this is useful

ROUGH INPUT	CLEAN EMAIL DOES
"implant consult leads are the issue"	Names the real business goal.
"front desk follows up late"	Turns the problem into an owner check.
"send me 60 days export?"	Makes the evidence request specific.
"then i'll say what to fix"	Turns a vague offer into a concrete result.

Optional internal note

FIELD	VALUE
Outcome	Clean follow-up email ready to paste.
Next action	Send export request and owner check.
Risk	Do not change spend before checking lead quality and follow-up speed.

RelayBrief turns one rough follow-up draft into one cleaner email. This example uses invented data.